The pre-professional program for law is not a major in which a degree can be earned but rather a program of study designed to strengthen the student's candidacy for law school.

Degree Outcomes

- Graduates have attended law school at institutions including:
  - The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
  - Duke University
  - Wake Forest University
  - Western Michigan University–Cooley Law School
  - Catholic University of America
  - University of South Carolina
  - Syracuse University
  - Vanderbilt University
  - Suffolk University
  - Washington and Lee University
- UNCG alumni hold positions including:
  - Attorney, U.S. Department of Labor
  - Attorney, city of Baltimore, Md.
  - District court judge, state of North Carolina
  - Counsel, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Brookville, Md.
  - Prosecuting attorney, Nassau County, Fla.
  - Criminal investigation division chief, U.S. Department of the Treasury, Indianapolis, Ind.
  - Criminal magistrate, Guilford County (N.C.) Schools

The Student Experience

- The expertise of members of the UNCG pre-law advisory committee in designing a comprehensive plan of study is intended to maximize the likelihood of your gaining admission to the law school of your choice.
- Guidance choosing an academically rigorous major will encourage the competencies that law school admission committees seek, including communication skills; critical, creative, and reflective thinking skills; and a developed understanding of American institutions and values.

(continued on next page)
The Student Experience (continued)

• Choose course work in the areas of philosophical, religious, and ethical principles (GPR) and reasoning and discourse (GRD). Courses in these areas are offered by departments including:
  o Anthropology
  o Communication Studies
  o English
  o History
  o Philosophy
  o Political Science
  o Religious Studies
  o Sociology

Additional Information

Admission to law school depends on a high GPA and strong scores on the Law School Admissions Test (LSAT).