The School of Theatre offers a full range of liberal arts and professional degree programs that prepare undergraduate students for a variety of career opportunities in theatre. The degrees provide students with a vital mix of coursework that combines theory and practice and encourages the development of skills and talents.

Degree Outcomes

- Alumni have pursued careers on Broadway, Off-Broadway, streaming sites such as Netflix, Amazon Prime, film and broadcast television, and major regional theatres.
- Many graduates continue their education with master's and doctoral degrees at schools including Yale School of Drama, Florida State University, New York University Tisch School of the Arts, and Carnegie Mellon University.
- Alumni include Tony, Grammy, and Emmy winners; Broadway stage managers; produced playwrights; working directors, actors, designers, and technicians; and faculty and staff at many colleges and universities.

The Student Experience

- Alpha Psi Omega (the National Theatre Student Honorary Organization) sponsors activities including an annual awards party and talent show fundraiser.
- The School of Theatre has an ongoing relationship with Triad Stage, a nonprofit regional professional theatre offering internships in stage management, assistant directing, acting, and theatre management.
- Acting opportunities are available with UNC School of the Arts film projects.
- Production and performance opportunities are offered by the North Carolina Theatre for Young People and New Play and Music Theatre Development Workshop.
- Participation in annual Industry Performance Showcase in New York City can be obtained by audition.
- National and international experiences to connect and workshop with leading artists and professional alumni, including cities such as New York, London, Wales, and Barcelona.
- Arts-based living community, "Studio 91" in Cone Residence Hall, featuring music, theater, and dance practice rooms; music composition computer lab; drawing lounge; and arts-related programs and events.
